

How to build a national library and archives website: Dynamic and user-centric design in LAC's new web presence

By

Andrea Eiding, Ph.D.

A/Manager, Web at Library and Archives Canada

Library and Archives Canada

Library and Archives
Canada

Bibliothèque et Archives
Canada

Canada

LAC's web presence, November 2021

The screenshot shows the Library and Archives Canada website. At the top, there is a blue header with the text "Library and Archives Canada" on the left and "Canada" on the right. A red maple leaf logo is positioned in the center. Below the header is a navigation bar with four main menu items: "Discover the Collection", "Search the Collection", "Services for the Public", and "Services and programs", each with a dropdown arrow. A search bar is located on the right side of the navigation bar, containing the text "Search BAC-LAC.gc.ca".

Below the navigation bar, there is a "Home" link and a light blue banner with the text "Renewing our web presence" and a close button (X). A paragraph of text follows: "As the custodian of our distant past and recent history, Library and Archives Canada (LAC) is a key resource for all Canadians who wish to gain a better understanding of who they are, individually and collectively. LAC acquires, processes, preserves and provides access to our documentary heritage and serves as the continuing memory of the Government of Canada and its institutions."

To the right of this paragraph is a "Follow" button with social media icons for Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, LinkedIn, RSS, and Instagram.

The "Latest" section features a large banner for "Signatures Interview with Gabor Szilasi". The banner includes the word "Signatures" in a stylized font, "INTERVIEW with Gabor Szilasi", and a portrait of Gabor Szilasi. Below the banner is a navigation bar with "Item 1 of 4" and a "Pause" button.

The "Services and information" section is divided into two columns. The left column is titled "Censuses" and contains the text: "Discover our extensive collection of Canadian census records from 1640 to 1926, and for Newfoundland from 1671 to 1945". The right column is titled "Genealogy and family history" and contains the text: "Learn about your ancestors with the help of our records and resources".

The "Most requested" section is on the right side and contains a list of links: "Indian Day School Class Action FAQ", "Census of the Prairie Provinces, 1926", "Copy services at LAC", "Request an ISBN", and "Access to information, privacy and person records".

The challenge

- Reimagining a website that had:
 - 7,000 pages, some of which hadn't been edited in 20 years
 - Valid critiques of outdated/offensive content
- Legacy databases
- Technological limitations
- LAC's unique role (web archiving, etc)
- Competing priorities, project fatigue and limited resources

Our objective

Create a user-centric, accessible, and dynamic website to enable Canadians to better connect with their documentary heritage.

What does this mean?

Our workflow

Analysis

Consultation with stakeholders/clients/subject matter experts

- Establish a minimum viable product

Design

UXE testing and mockups

- Create templates, information architecture, navigation
- Treasury Board Secretariat/Canada.ca requirements
- Official language requirements

Creation

Populating pages with material

- Plain language
- Formal approval process
- Coding

What was ready for launch

- A new URL (library-archives.canada.ca/ or bibliotheque-archives.canada.ca)
- A new navigational structure (based on themes, topics, and tasks)
- New content for three main topics (Indigenous history, military history, and family history/genealogy)
- Searching Collection Search directly from the home page
- Migration of 18 legacy databases

What we've done since (9 months later)

- Launch of Census Search beta (integrating all 17 major census databases, 1825-1921)
- Adjustments to the navigational system to make it more user-friendly
- Relaunch of the ATIP system
- Relaunch of the database, Second World War Service Files - War Dead, 1939-1947
- Development of a feedback tracking system

Library and Archives Canada

Library and Archives Canada (LAC) helps Canadians gain a better understanding of who they are. It serves as the continuing memory of the federal government and its institutions and as the guardian of Canada's distant past and recent history. Discover who we are and what we do.

Collection Search

Search government records, books, newspapers, images and more

Learn more about Collection Search or try our other search tools.

Asian Heritage Month: An opportunity to highlight stories of determination

May is Asian Heritage Month!

Preparing the 1931 Census

The 1931 Census of Canada is coming soon! Here's what we are doing to bring you free access this summer

Services for publishers

Find out about Canadian publishers, International standard numbers (ISBN, ISSN, ISMN), CIP data and Legal deposit

Visit us

Come see us in person

Collection

Access Canada's documentary heritage through the resources available below.

Collection Search

Search government records, books, newspapers, images and more

Learn more about Collection Search or try our other search tools.

Search the collections

Access materials using our databases

Help with your research

Discover our guides and tools

Engage and learn

Take part in Canadian history yourself

Come visit

Find out how to book an appointment, order materials and visit us on site

The basics

New to research? Check out our tips and tricks for effective research here

Most requested

- A to Z tools and guides
- Ask us a question
- Census search
- First World War Personnel Records
- Genealogy and family history
- Image credits

Features

Preparing the 1931 Census

The 1931 Census of Canada is coming soon! Here's what we are doing to bring you free access this summer

Latest podcast episode

Catch up with the latest episode

Nations to Nations

Indigenous voices at Library and Archives Canada

Search the collections

Access our materials through one of the databases below

Collection Search

Search the collections available to the public at LAC

Census Search

Search Canada's census records all in one place

Library catalogue \(Aurora\)

Search our collection of published material

Search other institutions \(Voilà\)

Looking for material we don't have? Check Voilà

Theses Canada

Search our collection of theses and dissertations from Canadian universities

Public opinion research reports

Search our database of public opinion research reports from departments across the government

See our other databases and tools

Filter options

Topic

Any

Sub-topic

Any

Type of guide

Database

Filter

Reset

Filter items

Showing 1 to 10 of 58 entries (filtered from 153 total entries) | Show entries

Title

Births, Marriages and Deaths Recorded in Canada

Black Loyalist Refugees - Port Roseway Associates

Cabinet Conclusions, 1944 to 1979

Guide description

Find information on family events like births, baptisms, marriages, deaths and burials.

This database contains references to Black Loyalists who joined the Port Roseway Associates during the evacuation of New York.

These documents include agendas, lists of attendees and summaries of discussions.

Help with your research

Want to do a deep dive into a particular topic, or just want to browse our records? Click on the tiles below to access our research guides and other resources on a variety of subjects.

Genealogy and family history

Discover your family heritage and learn about your ancestors

Indigenous history

Learn about the history of First Nations, Inuit and Métis Nation

Military history

Explore the history of Canadians at war

A to Z tools and guides

Searching for help on other topics?
This is the place to look

Did you find what you were looking for?

Yes

No

Share this page

Date modified: 2023-02-01

Genealogy and family history

There are many records that can help you learn more about your ancestor's experiences, including the census, naturalization records, immigration records, and military records. Read on to find resources that can help you with your research.

Census records

Search and access copies of censuses

Immigration records

Use these general instructions on using immigration records to do genealogical research

Citizenship and naturalization

Resources for researching citizenship and naturalization records

First World War - Personnel records

Search the service records for servicemembers who served in the First World War, 1914 to 1918

Employment records

Researching a person's employment, including those who were self-employed

Research guides and other resources

▼ Filter options

Topic

Any

Sub-topic

Any

Type of guide

Any

Filter

Reset

Filter items Showing 1 to 10 of 88 entries | Show entries

Title

Guide description

Acadians

Find resources for researching the family history and genealogy of Acadians

Acts of Divorce, 1841-1968

Search this database for references to names found in Acts of Divorce.

Appendix to Finding Aid 300

This is a list of some early local censuses for Nova Scotia, Ontario and PEI.

Births, Marriages and Deaths Recorded in Canada

Find information on family events like births, baptisms, marriages, deaths and burials.

Example: Before (Black Canadian genealogy)

Immigration History: Ethno-Cultural Groups
Acadian
Black history
British
Chinese
Danish
Doukhobor
Dutch
East Indian
Finnish
French
German
Greek
Hungarian
Icelandic
Irish
Italian
Japanese
Jews
Mennonites

Black History in Canada

▲ Historical language advisory: Read the notice about the collection.

- Research at Library and Archives Canada
- Research in published sources
- Research at other institutions and online

There has been a steady stream of migration of Black people into Canada via Africa, Europe, the Caribbean, and the United States since the 17th century. The first recorded Black person to arrive in Canada was an African named Mathieu de Coste who arrived in 1608 to serve as interpreter of the Mi'kmaq language to the governor of Acadia. A few thousand Africans arrived in Canada in the 17th and 18th centuries as slaves. After the American Revolution, the British gave passage to over 3000 slaves and free Blacks who had remained loyal to the Crown. These Black Loyalists joined the many other United Empire Loyalists in settlements across the Maritime Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island. Other Black slaves joined their Loyalist slave owners when they migrated to Canada.

In 1793, the Upper Canada legislature passed an act that granted gradual abolition and any slave arriving in the province was automatically declared free. Fearing for their safety in the United States after the passage of the first Fugitive Slave Law in 1793, over 30,000 slaves came to Canada via the Underground Railroad until the end of the American Civil War in 1865. They settled mostly in southern Ontario, but some also settled in Quebec and Nova Scotia. Many returned to the United States to fight in the Civil War and rejoin their families after its end.

Other migrations of Black people from the United States occurred during the War of 1812, when over 2000 refugees came to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Another group of over 800 free Blacks from California migrated to Vancouver Island between 1858 and 1860. Many Black people migrated to Canada in search of work and became porters with the railroad companies in Ontario, Quebec, and the Western provinces or worked in mines in the Maritimes. Between 1909 and 1911 over 1500 migrated from Oklahoma as farmers and moved to Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta.

In 1910 the government of Canada implemented a new Immigration Act that barred immigrants into Canada from races deemed undesirable and very few Black people entered Canada during the next few decades. In 1955, the West Indian Domestic Scheme permitted single women aged 18 to 35 and in good health to work in Canada as domestics for one year before being granted immigrant status. Over 2600 women were admitted under this scheme. In 1967, the government of Canada dropped the racially discriminatory immigration system, after which Black immigration rose dramatically.

Young girl, Africville, Nova Scotia

Mennonites
Norwegian
Polish
Russian
Scottish
Swedish
Ukrainian
Welsh

Research at Library and Archives Canada

Library and Archives Canada holds many fonds relating to Black people. Some of the documents and fonds are listed below.

Port Roseway Associates, Muster Book of Free Blacks, Settlement of Birchtown, 1784 (MG 9 B9-14)

During the American Revolution, the British and Loyalist forces evacuated New York in 1783. Hundreds of Loyalist refugees joined together to form the Port Roseway Associates with the intention of finding new homes and creating a new settlement in Nova Scotia. These Loyalists, with their families, servants and slaves, founded the community of Port Roseway, shortly thereafter renamed Shelburne. The free Blacks amongst the Loyalists formed a separate enclave known as Birchtown. The Muster Book of Free Blacks who settled in Birchtown has been indexed and digitized in the following database:

Black Loyalist Refugees, 1782-1807- Port Roseway Associates

Ward Chipman, Muster Master's Office (1777-1785) (MG 23 D1)

This fonds contains muster rolls of Loyalists and their families belonging to regiments that were disbanded and settled in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick (volumes 24 to 27, microfilm C-9818). It includes references to Black Loyalists, servants and free Blacks. The records have been indexed and digitized in the following database:

Loyalists in the Maritimes — Ward Chipman Muster Master's Office, 1777-1785

Book of Negroes (MG23 B1)

The Book of Negroes is contained within the British Headquarters Papers (microfilm M-369), also known as the Carleton Papers. It gives information such as names of the black Loyalists, health, distinguishing marks, status (free or slave), origins, names of their white associates and names of ships used to carry them. The names are indexed in the following database:

Carleton Papers — Book of Negroes, 1783

William King Collection (MG 24 J14)

Born in Scotland, William King came to Canada as a Free Church missionary and was active in the abolition struggle. He established the Elgin Settlement, designed for escaped slaves from the United States. He also assisted with the organization of a Black community near Chatham, Ontario. The Miscellaneous papers, 1836-1895, include his autobiography, correspondence and documents relating to the Buxton Mission and Elgin Association.

The William King collection includes a fuller description of the collection. Follow the lower level descriptions links to see more information and some digitized documents.

Great Britain: Treasury Office (MG 15 T28, microfilm C-13523)

The following pages contain references to Black people in Nova Scotia:

- A letter of G. Harrison to the Storekeeper General of 10 July 1816 concerning the disposition of stores delivered at Halifax for the use of Black refugees at Melville Island (vol. 14, p. 222)
- A letter from G. Harrison to the Commissioners of the Navy of 9 June 1821 concerning the removal of Black refugees from Halifax to Trinidad (vol. 19, p. 225)

Testing templates in Figma

The final page

 Government of Canada / Gouvernement du Canada

Français

Search LAC

MENU ▾

Canada.ca > Library and Archives Canada > Collection > Help with your research > Genealogy and family history
> Ethno-cultural groups

Black Canadians

Black history in Canada dates back at least as far as 1608, with the arrival of Mathieu de Coste, a Black African interpreter. Today, Black Canadians can trace their descent to the following groups:

- enslaved Africans and their descendents
- Black Loyalists
- Black immigrants from the Caribbean and Africa

i Historic language advisory
In your research, you may encounter historical language referring to Black Canadians that is considered offensive today. Please read the notice about historical language in LAC's collection.

On this page

- Before you start
- Places to look
- Search tips
- Related resources

Before you start

Gather information such as:

- name(s)
- approximate year of birth
- country of birth
- approximate year of arrival
- place of residence in Canada

Places to look

There are several ways to research the genealogy and family history of Black Canadians.

- ▶ 1. Census records
- ▶ 2. Immigration and citizenship records
- ▶ 3. Military and wartime records
- ▶ 4. Employment records
- ▶ 5. Historic Black communities
- ▶ 6. Community newspapers
- ▶ 7. Published sources
- ▶ 8. Genealogical societies

Search tips

- Major historical events involving Black Canadians include:
 - Slavery during the New France regime
 - Black Loyalists
 - The Underground Railroad
 - The Great Migration
 - Domestic settlement immigration schemes
- Consider neighbourhoods and communities. It was common for Black migrants to settle in the same areas. You may be able to find your ancestors by looking geographically.
- Spelling was not standardized, and the same names might be written in many different ways.

Access the records

Digitized records

If you find a record of interest, there may be a digital image. Some of these are available through Collection Search. Others, particularly digitized microforms, are available through Héritage.

Records that are not digitized

For records that are not digitized, you will need to see them in person. If you cannot visit us in person, you may want to order copies or hire a researcher.

Related resources

- Carleton Papers – Loyalists and British soldiers, 1772-1784

Before and after

Immigration History: Ethno-Cultural Groups
Acadian
Black history
British
Chinese
Danish
Doukhobor
Dutch
East Indian
Finnish
French
German
Greek
Hungarian
Icelandic
Irish
Italian
Japanese
Jews
Mennonites

Black History in Canada

Historical language advisory: Read the notice about the collection.

- Research at Library and Archives Canada
- Research in published sources
- Research at other institutions and online

There has been a steady stream of migration of Black people into Canada via Africa, Europe, the Caribbean, and the United States since the 17th century. The first recorded Black person to arrive in Canada was an African named Mathieu de Coste who arrived in 1608 to serve as interpreter of the Mi'kmaq language to the governor of Acadia. A few thousand Africans arrived in Canada in the 17th and 18th centuries as slaves. After the American Revolution, the British gave passage to over 3000 slaves and free Blacks who had remained loyal to the Crown. These Black Loyalists joined the many other United Empire Loyalists in settlements across the Maritime Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island. Other Black slaves joined their Loyalist slave owners when they migrated to Canada.

In 1793, the Upper Canada legislature passed an act that granted gradual abolition and any slave arriving in the province was automatically declared free. Fearing for their safety in the United States after the passage of the first Fugitive Slave Law in 1793, over 30,000 slaves came to Canada via the Underground Railroad until the end of the American Civil War in 1865. They settled mostly in southern Ontario, but some also settled in Quebec and Nova Scotia. Many returned to the United States to fight in the Civil War and rejoin their families after its end.

Other migrations of Black people from the United States occurred during the War of 1812, when over 2000 refugees came to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Another group of over 800 free Blacks from California migrated to Vancouver Island between 1858 and 1860. Many Black people migrated to Canada in search of work and became porters with the railroad companies in Ontario, Quebec, and the Western provinces or worked in mines in the Maritimes. Between 1909 and 1911 over 1500 migrated from Oklahoma as farmers and moved to Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta.

In 1910 the government of Canada implemented a new Immigration Act that barred immigrants into Canada from races deemed undesirable and very few Black people entered Canada during the next few decades. In 1955, the West Indian Domestic Scheme permitted single women aged 18 to 35 and in good health to work in Canada as domestics for one year before being granted immigrant status. Over 2600 women were admitted under this scheme. In 1967, the government of Canada dropped the racially discriminatory immigration system, after which Black immigration rose dramatically.

Young girl, Africville, Nova Scotia

Government of Canada / Gouvernement du Canada

Français

Search LAC

MENU

Canada.ca > Library and Archives Canada > Collection > Help with your research > Genealogy and family history > Ethno-cultural groups

Black Canadians

Black history in Canada dates back at least as far as 1608, with the arrival of Mathieu de Coste, a Black African interpreter. Today, Black Canadians can trace their descent to the following groups:

- enslaved Africans and their descendants
- Black Loyalists
- Black immigrants from the Caribbean and Africa

i Historic language advisory

In your research, you may encounter historical language referring to Black Canadians that is considered offensive today. Please read the notice about historical language in LAC's collection.

On this page

- Before you start
- Places to look
- Search tips
- Related resources

Before you start

Gather information such as:

- name(s)
- approximate year of birth
- country of birth
- approximate year of arrival
- place of residence in Canada

Before and after

Mennonites
Norwegian
Polish
Russian
Scottish
Swedish
Ukrainian
Welsh

Research at Library and Archives Canada

Library and Archives Canada holds many fonds relating to Black people. Some of the documents and fonds are listed below.

Port Roseway Associates, Muster Book of Free Blacks, Settlement of Birchtown, 1784 (MG 9 B9-14)

During the American Revolution, the British and Loyalist forces evacuated New York in 1783. Hundreds of Loyalist refugees joined together to form the Port Roseway Associates with the intention of finding new homes and creating a new settlement in Nova Scotia. These Loyalists, with their families, servants and slaves, founded the community of Port Roseway, shortly thereafter renamed Shelburne. The free Blacks amongst the Loyalists formed a separate enclave known as Birchtown. The Muster Book of Free Blacks who settled in Birchtown has been indexed and digitized in the following database:

Black Loyalist Refugees, 1782-1807- Port Roseway Associates

Ward Chipman, Muster Master's Office (1777-1785) (MG 23 D1)

This fonds contains muster rolls of Loyalists and their families belonging to regiments that were disbanded and settled in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick (volumes 24 to 27, microfilm C-9818). It includes references to Black Loyalists, servants and free Blacks. The records have been indexed and digitized in the following database:

Loyalists in the Maritimes — Ward Chipman Muster Master's Office, 1777-1785

Book of Negroes (MG23 B1)

The Book of Negroes is contained within the British Headquarters Papers (microfilm M-369), also known as the Carleton Papers. It gives information such as names of the black Loyalists, health, distinguishing marks, status (free or slave), origins, names of their white associates and names of ships used to carry them. The names are indexed in the following database:

Carleton Papers – Book of Negroes, 1783

William King Collection (MG 24 J14)

Born in Scotland, William King came to Canada as a Free Church missionary and was active in the abolition struggle. He established the Elgin Settlement, designed for escaped slaves from the United States. He also assisted with the organization of a Black community near Chatham, Ontario. The Miscellaneous papers, 1836-1895, include his autobiography, correspondence and documents relating to the Buxton Mission and Elgin Association.

The William King collection includes a fuller description of the collection. Follow the lower level descriptions links to see more information and some digitized documents.

Great Britain: Treasury Office (MG 15 T28, microfilm C-13523)

The following pages contain references to Black people in Nova Scotia:

- A letter of G. Harrison to the Storekeeper General of 10 July 1816 concerning the disposition of stores delivered at Halifax for the use of Black refugees at Melville Island (vol. 14, p. 222)
- A letter from G. Harrison to the Commissioners of the Navy of 9 June 1821 concerning the removal of Black refugees from Halifax to Trinidad (vol. 19, p. 225)

Places to look

There are several ways to research the genealogy and family history of Black Canadians.

▶ 1. Census records

▼ 2. Immigration and citizenship records

These records usually include information about ethnicity and place of birth.

For more information, see:

- Immigration records (includes passenger lists and border entry records)
- Citizenship and naturalization records

You can find these records in Collection Search with keywords like Black, African or Caribbean, plus:

- immigrants
- list or lists
- a person's name
- a place in Canada or in the person's country of origin

Other related files we hold that might be helpful include:

- Canadian Pacific Railway requests admission of coloured porters (Blacks), 1931-1949 (volume 577, file 816222, parts 6-10, microfilms C-10652 and C-10653) and Coloured domestics from Guadeloupe, 1910-1928 (volume 475, file 731832, microfilm C-10411).
 - Note: The names in these two files are indexed in this database: Immigrants to Canada, Porters and Domestics, 1899-1949.
- Black Loyalist Refugees, Port Roseway Associates, 1782 to 1807
- Carleton Papers – Book of Negroes, 1783

▶ 3. Military and wartime records

▶ 4. Employment records

▶ 5. Historic Black communities

▶ 6. Community newspapers

▶ 7. Published sources

▶ 8. Genealogical societies

What you will see in the next few months

- My shared research lists
- My circulation requests
- Consolidated FWW databases
- 1931 Census
- Migration of the remaining legacy databases
- Introduction to the archive and archival research help pages
- More research help pages
- Relaunch of the Government of Canada Web Archive

We want to hear from you!

If you have feedback, please send to servicesweb-webservices@bac-lac.gc.ca

If you are interested in a more in-depth look at what we are doing and how it relates to your work, we are happy to present in more detail

Thank you!

Library and Archives Canada

Library and Archives
Canada

Bibliothèque et Archives
Canada

Canada